

Environmental Policy

EPSCO Ltd. has environmental performance inherent in the very nature of its work. We work for a variety of clients including the Drinking Water Industry, the Marine and Offshore Industry, Power Generators (conventional and nuclear), Distilling and Pharmaceutical Manufacturers.

We specialise in improving environmental performance by applying specialised techniques that positively impacts on efficiency, health, safety and environmental compliance.

Our applied chemical applications are specifically designed to be completely effective in removing a wide range of naturally occurring physical and biological deposits. Our unique methods allow us to reduce water use dramatically compared to traditional methods.

Following application, our purposely formulated chemical blends are designed to be simply and effectively neutralised to ensure all regulatory requirements are fully complied with.

We at EPSCO have committed to maintaining and continually improving the environment, and our own environmental performance. Therefore, we have set procedures that examine and control any possible adverse impact on the wider environment resulting from our daily work activities.

Our commitment to the environment and the community is to:

- Maintain an ISO 14001 compatible environmental management system within the company.
- Work in compliance with all relevant environmental legislation.
- Train employees about all responsibilities they have regarding operating under conditions of environmental best practice. This includes knowledge and use of our products, and awareness of actual and potential environmental issues.
- Prevent pollution of surrounding areas due to discharge from our work activities.
- Work towards minimising the amount of water used for our work activities through the development of more efficient processes.
- Consider environmentally-friendly factors for materials, equipment, suppliers and chemicals.
- Promote waste minimisation and the recycling of materials used in day-to-day business activities.
- Ensure, our policy and implementation is reviewed annually or when other relevant changes occur.

In order to reinforce the commitment to the environment the company will communicate effectively, while drawing up and working towards a set of measurable objectives and targets determined by management.
